Lonergan to receive Loyola medal

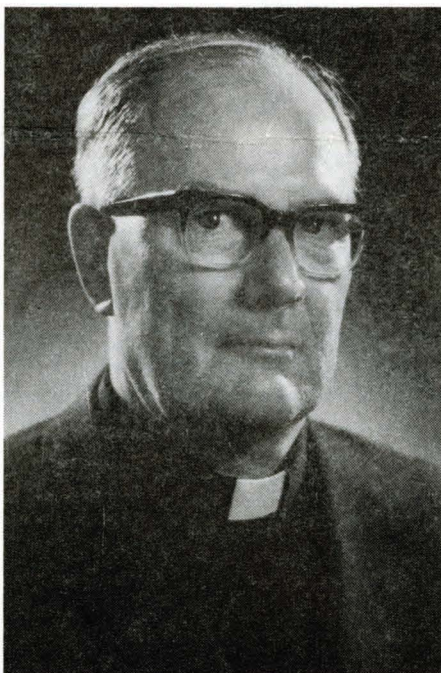

What am I doing when I am knowing?

Why is that knowing?

What do I know when I do that?

Father Bernard Joseph Lonergan, considered by many intellectuals to be the finest philosophic thinker of this century, says that a simplified synthesis of his thought in his profoundly challenging book, Insight, boils down to those three questions.

In this publication and in later papers, he develops an all-embracing theory of knowledge that includes every area of human understanding. His particular distinction is that he shares modern philosophy's concern for each man's uniqueness, and sees man's own self-understanding as the key to understanding the universe around him.

Father Lonergan has received many honors. Last year he was the central figure at an assemblage of 77 of the best minds in Europe and the Americas—both critics and admirers—who were discussing his theological and philosophical work.

This year at Loyola he will receive another form of recognition. On November 1st, at a dinner in his honor at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, he will be presented with the Loyola of Montreal Alumni Association's Medal.

This medal, inaugurated 10 years ago, honors people whose character, philosophy and contribution have enriched Canadian heritage and humanity. Previous distinguished recipients of the medal include former Governor General, the late George P. Vanier, His Eminence Paul-Emile Cardinal Léger, Montreal mayor Jean Drapeau and Arthur F. Mayne, Canadian financier.

Father Lonergan's presentation comes 49 years after he left Loyola at the end of his sophomore year. Born in Buckingham, Quebec, he came to the college at the age of 15. When he left in 1922, "his formation was probably not much different from that of other Canadian boys of his time," says an introduction to Collection, a selection of Father Lonergan's writings published in 1967.

But Loyola had prepared him to enter the Jesuit Novitiate at Guelph, Ontario, where he began to encounter different influences. After two years at St. Ignatius College he went to England, studying at Heythrop College and earning his B.A. from the University of London.

His next move was to Gregorian University, Rome, where he studied for seven years before returning in Montreal

Kierans chairs fund for Loyola drive

This year's Fund for Loyola Drive, promised by advance reports to be the most ambitious in Loyola's 75 year history, will be chaired by Kevin Kierans, a Loyola High School and College student of 1935 to '43, who went on to a distinguished career in the Canadian Army.

A member of a family with many associations with Loyola, Kevin Kierans, 49, and currently management co-ordinator at the Bank of Montreal, has renewed close contact with the college only in the last two years since returning to Montreal after an absence of a quarter century.

He has accepted the position of Fund Drive Chairman, one of the most demanding of Alumni voluntary posts, because he feels "it is one way there can be part of me in Loyola now I am in Montreal again."

Crediting Loyola as being a contributing factor to his success in life he says: "The education I gained there influenced me to try and live in the reality of right now—a unique feature that comes out of the basic understanding in humanity Loyola taught me."

He sees a major challenge for Loyola alumni in the current changes taking place at the college. "The alumni must support Loyola in every way at this time," he says, "not only financially, but in 1940 to become Professor of Theology at L'Immaculate Conception College, Montreal. Seven years later he became head of the theology department at Regis College, Toronto, staying until 1953 when he returned to Rome as Professor of Theology at Gregorian University.

In 1965 he came back to Canada again and Regis College. This year he holds the Stillman Chair of Catholic Studies at Harvard University. The 25 years of teaching had seen Father Lonergan's studies, thought and influence expand beyond the theology that had been the original basis, although it has remained a major concern. His teaching career, summed up in the Collection foreword is seen as being "occupied with a relentless struggle to bring new ideas into relation with the old."

His book Insight, published in 1957, has been acclaimed his masterwork. In it he develops a theory of knowledge that embraces mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, depth psychology, the social and human sciences and modern philosophy. Other English books have been: Collection and Verbum (1967); in Latin, de Constitutione Christi (1956), De Deo Trino (1964), and De Verbo Incarnato (1964).

through all facets of college and community life."

Kevin Kierans began his Army career as a second lieutenant when he left Loyola in his Junior year, and first distinguished himself during the Second World War as a platoon commander with the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment in North-West Europe.

He took part in crossing the beaches at Normandy and was at the front in France, Belgium, Holland and North Germany, earning himself the Military Cross in 1945 for outstanding service in combat.

In 1954/55 he served in Korea as Company Commander with the 4th Battalion, Canadian Guards, and 1961/62 saw him back in the Far East as a staff officer on the International Control Commission in Viet Nam. He was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in 1964 and for two years commanded the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards at Camp Petawawa, Ont., leaving to become director of training plans at Canadian Forces Headquarters, the position he held on his retirement from the Army in 1969.

A LETTER TO AN ALUMNUS

DEAR ALUMNUS:

A tradition of academic and athletic excellence has enhanced the name of Loyola College since the turn of the century. Despite the obstacles encountered through the years, the College has maintained an enviable record.

As with other Universities, Loyola is feeling the effects of expanding costs, compounded by limited government grants. Funds available for Athletics have been decreasing as the needs of all other academic and extra-curricular areas, with budget priorities, must continue to be met.

During the coming 1971-72 academic year, the Department of Physical Education and Athletics will be required to staff and operate the complete program on a net budget of $40,000. To continue with the established standard of excellence at both the intramural and intercollegiate levels, the Department is in need of increased gate revenues.

We are asking you, as an individual concerned about Loyola, to consider a donation of $10.00 in the form of purchasing a season's ticket at a special reduced rate.

The season's ticket entitles the bearer to admission to forty home varsity contests. Three varsity teams, Basketball, Hockey, and Soccer, will be defending conference champions. The 1971 Football team also has the potential of being strong contenders for Provincial laurels. It should be a most interesting year.

I hope you and your family will be able to attend several home games. If time or distance will not permit, I do hope that you will consider being with us "in spirit" by financially backing our teams and program.

Thanking you in advance, I am,

Yours sincerely,

EDMUND F. ENOS,
DIRECTOR.

alumni varsity soccer at Loyola

Saturday, October 2nd this year, will see the first ever Alumni versus Varsity Soccer play to take place on the Loyola College Athletic field at 2:00 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

"It is probably a first in Canada as far as soccer goes," says Harry Hus '61. A three man committee chaired by Andy Oronato and including Claudio Sandrin and Harry Hus have been hard at work for the past few weeks getting letters out to all Loyola graduates who have played soccer to get a team together for the proposed match.

"So far we have nine acceptances", says Harry, "and we don't foresee any problems getting the rest of the team together." Some of the players who have agreed to play for the Alumni team include Nick del Zoppo, Claudio Sandrin, and Andy Oronato all of whom play professionally for Kalena, a Montreal team in the Major Division of the National Soccer League.

Should any Alumnus wish to play for the Alumni team and has not been contacted by letter, call Harry Hus at home 487-2763.

"We certainly hope," says Harry "that these Alumni versus Varsity encounters will become annual events."

ALUMNI VS VARSITY BASKETBALL-HOCKEY

Harry takes over a team that reached the Canadian finals last year and is hopeful that it will again be a strong contender this year. Training began August 16 and the first game of the season was played last Saturday. This Saturday, September 18, the team will play Vanier College on the Loyola campus. Saturday, October 2, The Alumni will play the Varsity. Game time is 2 p.m.

He played on the 1962 OSLAA championships soccer squad and was voted most valuable player that year. In 1963 he was a member of the OSLAA basketball team that represented Loyola in the CIAU Nationals at Windsor. In 1964 the year of his graduation from Commerce he won Loyola's coveted Athlete of the Year Award.

Following his Loyola days, he played soccer for different clubs in the Montreal area, among them Hellenic, Ukrania, and Kickers. He also played a year of Semi-pro ball for Kakoah of Chicago in 1965, before being forced to end his playing career due to a serious knee injury.

He has been on the Quebec Soccer Federation executive and is presently on the executive of the Referees' Basketball Association. Next year he will qualify as a FIBA official with the objective of officiating in the 1976 Olympics.

Harry is an active volunteer working on special projects with the Sun Youth Organization. Along with his coaching duties at Loyola, he teaches Mathematics at Lachine High School. He is married with one son, Remy, three.

DUANE CLARK KILLED IN MOTORCYCLE CRASH

Duane was an outstanding guard with Doug Daigneault's Quintet and was named to the second team Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association All-Star aggregation after helping lead Loyola to its fourth consecutive undefeated conference record.

He will be missed at Loyola and students, faculty, and staff extend sympathies to his family and friends.

hockey Canada scholarships to Loyola quartet

Four members of Dave Draper's championship hockey Warriors have been awarded Hockey Canada scholarships. They are among 98 student hockey players from across Canada who are being helped financially to pursue university studies, while at the same time continuing their hockey careers.

Loyola winners are: LARRY CARRIERE, 19, St. Laurent, Quebec, a defence star with the Warriors for the past three seasons. Carrière is considered one of the top junior draft prospects in amateur ranks. He is expected to gain a berth on the Canada Student National Team that will represent Canada in the World Student Games (FISU) scheduled for Lake Placid in February. Carrière is a student in Business Administration.

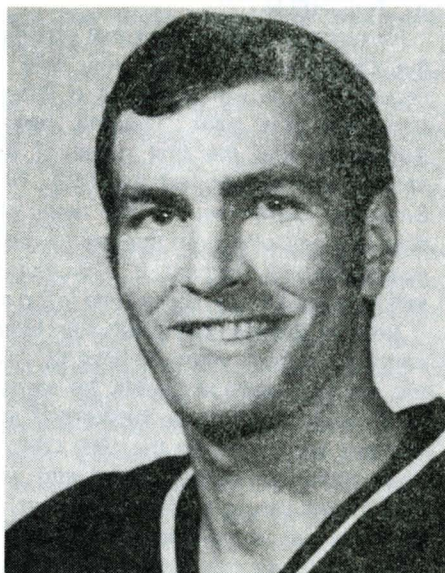

JEAN-PAUL MARTIN, 19, Beloeil, Quebec, a rookie centre last season with Shawinigan Bruins of the Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League, he centered their top line, scoring 40 goals and 74 assists in 77 games. He is heavily counted on to fill the void left by the graduation of captain Chris Hayes. Martin is also in his draft year and is expected to merit a lot of attention from the pro scouts. Business major.

PAT MCCOOL, 23, Montreal, Quebec, will be starting his third season with the Warriors. A hard-rock left winger, McCool was the team's leading goal scorer this past season, getting 35 in 37 games. As a result, he was placed on Vancouver Canucks' negotiation list and will be attending Rochester Americans' training camp in September. McCool is a former junior standout with Shawinigan Bruins. He is a student in fourth year Arts.

RON RILEY, 23, Two Mountains, Quebec, is a repeat hockey Canada scholarship winner. Entering his final year at Loyola and his third on the team, Riley scored 27 goals in each of his two seasons with the Warriors. A former player with London Knights of the junior OHA and Belleville Mohawks of the senior OHA, Riley belongs to Pittsburgh Penguins and attended their training camp last fall. Married, he is a student in Arts.

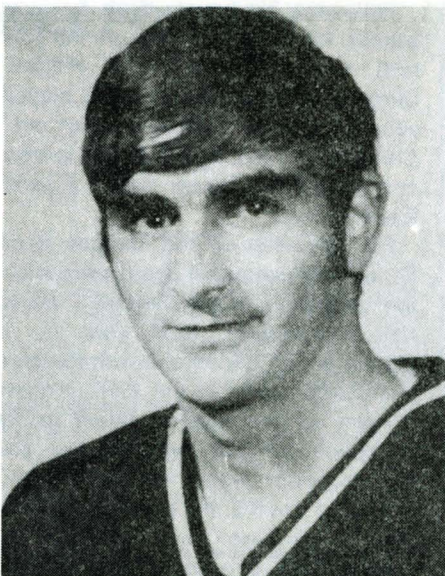

These awards are renewable on a yearly basis provided satisfactory academic standing is maintained.

Doug Daigneault, Loyola's head basketball coach for the past five years, has been named head football coach for the coming Warrior season in the Quebec University Athletic Association. Mr. Daigneault was assistant football coach at Loyola and a former star halfback for the Ottawa Roughriders . . .

four students form corporation

From lecture hall to board room is usually a lengthy climb, but four Loyola students made the transition this summer in one short step. Not only that but they have created a firm aimed at benefiting their student colleagues.

Peter Lonergan, Jan Muszynski, Ron McCaffrey and John Toppetta turned businessmen by forming Student Enterprises of Loyola Ltd, and taking over the Fina gas station on Somerled at Kensington at the end of June.

At the gas station, with an entrance-spanning banner announcing Loyola student management and service, the four man the pumps themselves and are already well on their way to making their venture a success.

STUDENT CARD HOLDERS RECEIVE 8 PER CENT DISCOUNT

Gas sales are up almost one third from the take-over figures and are expected to leap higher after the beginning of the winter session when all Loyola student card holders will be given an 8 per cent discount on gas and oil purchases.

Backed by Loyola, but a completely autonomous operation, the gas station, started with a $5,000 loan, is only the first of several business ventures that can be expected from Student Enterprises this term.

MORE PROJECTS UNDERWAY

Peter, a '71 history honors graduate who is taking a year off to head the corporation before entering law school in '72; Jan, taking Theatre Arts; Ron, Science; and John, History (the three are in their third year) hope to have other projects well on the way before Christmas.

They plan a used book exchange for the first three weeks of the winter session, hope to sign their first distribution contract shortly (they have already bought a delivery truck), and are in the process of setting up a tutoring agency.

Profits from such schemes, if sufficiently high, are earmarked for a mini-Student-Enterprises-organised Opportunities for Youth type program to start next summer. "We would like to be able to finance community service programs employing students," says Peter.

Student employment is, in fact, the main reason for Student Enterprises' existence. "We will look into everything that can be done by students—home services, show clearing, gardening, renovations, light moving, are other avenues to be investigated."

'71 grad ponders new status as alumnus

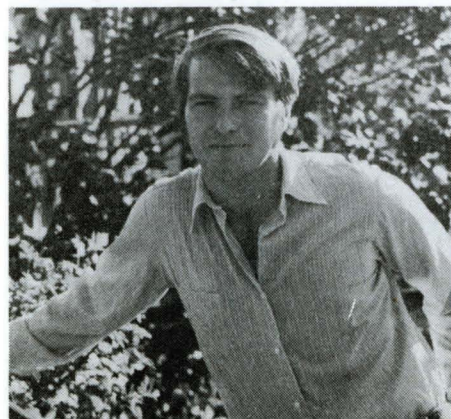

by Julian Kusek

By virtue of graduation, one begins to receive personalized solicitations for credit cards. But a more sobering effect of graduation is that it creates alumni, and the fact that one becomes automatically a member of this unknown organization, is a cause for reflection for the new graduate.

For four years (normally) we were called students (full-time, part-time or undecided). The only ones who fully appreciated the magnificence of this occupation were our professors. Problems and mistakes of our own making and of others both seemed at times to outweigh our reasons for being students. Despite this and ourselves we finally emerged as Loyola graduates.

The ideal movement from student to alumnus involves individuals who use their remembrance of their years at Loyola as a base for continuing participation within the college's life. The alumni association co-ordinates the various social, political and economic activities which establish alumni as an integral group within the Loyola community.

The association, though becoming multi-faceted, remains basically a meeting place for alumni to renew friendships, but more important it provides and opportunity to make new working friendships with graduates of all years. It is through our knowing of each other can we truly assess the integrity of Loyola's mandate to form educated and beautiful people; it is through our working together can Loyola benefit both as an institution and as an educational ideal.
